

Former CIA agent John Stockwell writes in The Secret Wars of the CIA, June 1986:

“We had the ‘public safety program’ going throughout Central and Latin America for 26 years, in which we taught them to break up subversion by interrogating people. Interrogation, including torture, the way the CIA taught it. They developed a wire. They gave them crank generators, with ‘U.S. AID’ written on the side, so the people even knew where these things came from. They developed a wire that was strong enough to carry the current and fine enough to fit between the teeth, so you could put one wire between the teeth and the other one in or around the genitals and you could crank and submit the individual to the greatest amount of pain, supposedly, that the human body can register.” ... “Public Safety Program”. Tell me that’s not the most mind-fuckingly Orwellian-sounding department you’ve heard in your entire life.

The head of the Office of Public safety in Montevideo, 1969-70 was Jim Jones’ good friend, DAN MITRIONE. “I can teach you about torture, but sooner or later you’ll have to get involved. You’ll have to lay on your hands and try it yourselves.” – DAN MITRIONE.

“The precise pain, in the precise place, in the precise amount, for the desired effect.” — DAN MITRIONE.

“As subjects for the first testing they took beggars ... from the outskirts of Montevideo, as well as a woman apparently from the frontier area with Brazil. There was no interrogation, only a demonstration of the effects of different voltages on the different parts of the human body.... The four of them died.” — Manuel Hevia Cosculluela, former CIA agent and associate of Mitrione
“All they [the guinea pigs, beggars from off the streets] could do was lie there and scream. And when they would collapse, they would bring in doctors and shoot them up with vitamin B and rest them up for the next class. And when they would die, they would mutilate the bodies and throw them out on the streets, to terrify the population so they would be afraid of the police and the government.” ... Torture becomes a “normal, frequent and habitual occurrence” including “electric shocks to the genitals, electric needles under the fingernails, burning with cigarettes, the slow compression of the testicles, daily use of psychological torture”

According to a report based on US State Department documents obtained by Senator James Abourezk in 1973” ... “pregnant women were imprisoned with their very young infants and subjected to the same treatment” —

“DAN MITRIONE was [himself] kidnapped in 1970 by the Tupamaros. They do not torture him. They demand the release of some 150 prisoners in exchange for him. With the determined backing of the Nixon administration, the Uruguayan government refuses. ... Mitrione’s dead body is found on the back seat of a stolen car.”

“Mr. Mitrione’s devoted service to the cause of peaceful progress in an orderly world will remain as an example for free men everywhere.” — Ron Ziegler, White House spokesperson
After Mitrione’s death, Frank Sinatra and Jerry Lewis performed at a benefit for his wife.
